With the exception of grand and reserve, exhibitors may submit a drop slip to withdrawal their market project from the sale. Please see fair schedule for deadlines.
 - b. A terminal sale means all animals sold through the sale must be harvested or sent to a recognized market, as indicated by the buyer. [No animal sold through the sale can be donated back to the exhibitor].
 - c. Per ODA all Champions/Reserve Champions must sell, if an exhibitor wins more than one grand and/or reserve then all will sell. The remainder goes into a scholarship fund to be used the following year.
 - d. Any market project except for grand or reserve, can be removed from the sale order, so long as a Market Sale Drop Slip is completed and turned in by the identified deadline. If the exhibitor does not turn in a Market Sale Drop Slip and the market project is not in the sale, the animal will be consigned to market and the exhibitor will receive market price, no exceptions. Market Sale Drop Slips must be turned in by designated specie deadlines. Rabbits and chickens continue to sell as a pen, not as individual stock, and unless withdrawn from the sale will be sent to harvest.
 - e. Failure to complete a Market Sale Drop Slip will result in the exhibitors highest placing animal going through the sale and all others going to market for market price.
 - f. For any year the Ohio Department of Agriculture (ODA) requires a terminal show, the state requirement will take precedent over any local county conflicting rules.
2. Order of sale:
 - i. Grand Champion and Reserve Champion etc., according to the quality of the animals.

The Sale order for the remaining animals will be placed in lot order (no placing intended) according to their placing in their respective classes. Lots will start with the next highest placing animal in line from heavy to light weight classes until all qualifying animals have been assigned a sale/lot number.
 4. A fee per animal/pen, as set yearly by the sales committee will be deducted from the exhibitor's sale check for administration fee for sales expenses.
 5. There will be no re-sale of animals during the Junior Fair Sales. Market projects may be sold only once through the sale ring.
 6. There will be no guaranteed price to the exhibitor for their Junior Fair market livestock project animal.
